Inland Pacific Ballet (IPB) requests an exemption from the OGP 2.5 eligibility requirement that administrative offices be maintained in Los Angeles County with the following explanation.

Established in 1991, IPB has performed at the 2,500 seat Bridges Auditorium in Claremont since 1995, and in 1999 was named the resident ballet company. As one of only a few arts organizations in the underserved eastern Los Angeles County and San Gabriel Valley area, Inland Pacific Ballet plays a vital role in providing arts experiences accessible to constituents in the region.

Distinguished Leadership Circle

The Ahmanson Foundation
The James Irvine Foundation

Administrative offices and rehearsal studios are located less than one mile (7 tenths) outside of Los Angeles County in Montclair because in 1991 no other suitable and affordable space was available to the company. Our contracted Director of Marketing and Development maintains an office in Rowland Heights, and the Director a home office in Claremont.

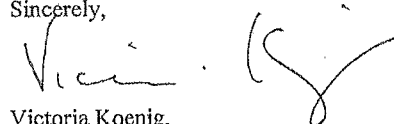

More than 20,000 persons of all ages attend a public performance, and more than 8,000 students attend a Young Person's Guide to the Ballet K-12 outreach performance annually. The majority of these audiences reside in Los Angeles County and all performances are held in Los Angeles County as shown on the following chart.

Description	Los Angeles County*	San Bernardino County	Other Counties
7,050 Ticket Purchasers (3 years - 05/06/07)	50% (3,525 persons)	44%	6%
24,373 K-12 Outreach Attendees (3 years - 05/06/07)	49% (11,863 persons)	45%	7%
Performance Locations (3 years - 05/06/07)	100% 98	-0-	-0-

* Primarily: Arcadia, Temple City, Altadena, Sierra Madre, Pasadena, El Monte, La Puente, Baldwin Park, Covina, West Covina, Hacienda Heights, Rowland Heights, Whittier, Duarte, Azusa, Glendora, Monrovia, Diamond Bar, Walnut, Pomona, San Dimas, La Verne, and Claremont.

Inland Pacific Ballet provides critically acclaimed dance productions, and K-12 educational outreach programs to thousands of Los Angeles County residents. We respectfully ask that you grant our exemption request.

Sincerely,

Victoria Koenig,
Artistic Director

Re: Responding to Programmatic and Administrative Reductions for 2008/2010 Grantees

In response to recent and anticipated financial challenges, several grantees have shared with us their concerns about fulfilling the requirements of their current grant contracts.

Historically, staff has routinely worked with grantees to make changes to grant contracts that are related to the original project. However, in light of the uncertain economic future, we anticipate a number of grantees will request to use their grant funds for purposes that are distinct from the project for which they received a grant—or may be inclined to simply forfeit their grants.

Peer agencies are experiencing similar requests and are responding in a range of ways. For example, the James Irvine Foundation recently sent a letter to their grantees stating the Foundation is "open, on a case-by-case basis, to revisiting grant objectives, grant budgets, and relates timelines..." though such revisions cannot substantially alter the focus of the grant. In December, the Weingart Foundation announced that it would no longer make grants to support new services and programs and that it was expanding its general operating support program. It has been reported that the Weingart Foundation is permitting grantees to use funds originally granted for projects to underwrite core operating expenses.

We look forward to discussing with you the degree of flexibility that will most appropriately and responsibly support our grantees during these challenging times.

49TH ANNUAL
COUNTY CELEBRATION
WRAP REPORT
January 2009

The PBS Holiday Celebration site, www.pbs.org/holidaycelebration, included two special features newly constructed and made exclusive to the PBS site: video mini-documentaries of eight of the artists on the national show were posted and "Eat, Sing and Be Merry," was updated to feature 2008 National Show artists' favorite holiday recipes and customs. Additionally, "Bonus! LAHC Plus," provided producers' picks of eight outstanding "outtake" performances from the local show not included in the national broadcast.

Audience Survey Results

A different approach was taken in surveying audience members at this year's live show. Known as the "intercept method" a team of surveyors collected emails from patrons in line and sent a link to the survey immediately after the show. The process proved to be more efficient and effective, leading to a response rate of 53%, as of January 2. The total sample size was 645, 552 adults and 93 children.

English and Spanish surveys were also available to TV viewers at our website. Throughout the six hour broadcast, hosts reminded TV viewers to visit the website and take the survey.

Highlights Include:

General Trends

- The most popular hour people tuned in to or attended the show was 5-6 PM, followed by 4-5 PM.
- Almost two-thirds the respondents received their information from KCET (online and TV).
- 84% of all respondents are very likely to return to a future Holiday Celebration show.
- 44% of live show respondents attended Holiday Celebration for the first time, while 60% of TV viewers had seen the show 6 or more times.

"This was the best performance in all the years we have been attending. The perfect mix of variety while keeping a special feeling for the holiday season."

-2008 Audience Member

KCET: A :30 second video promoting the local show aired on PBS/KCET a total of 57 times between 12/18/2008 and 12/23/2008. As indicated by our survey results, 63% of our respondents received information about the Holiday Celebration through KCET (television and online).

Clear Channel Billboards: The focus of this year's promotional campaign was to increase our TV viewership. Laurence Cohen, a consultant from TLC MediaWorks, provided expertise in this area. He secured a visible digital billboard campaign with Clear Channel that displayed information and graphics of the program on 46 billboards throughout greater Los Angeles. A total of 1,762,886 spots ran from 11/01/08 – 12/25/08 with an estimated value of $298,000. Additionally he brokered a promotional campaign with Laemmle Theatres and developed the Chef-Host concept for the show.

Laemmle Theatres: The campaign on 32 screens at seven Laemmle Theatre complexes was comprised of three weeks of slides as a no-cost bonus and nearly a month of additional video exposures (Total slide exposures: 8,587; Total video frequency: 3,593). The media value of this campaign is estimated at $12,101.

produced mini-documentary "package" was aired which featured the work of the Food Bank and the increased support that many Los Angeles families are in need of during this economically challenging year. During the 6-hours of the show, Holiday Celebration hosts invited attendees to bring food donations to the Music Center or to visit the Arts Commission website where a link to the L.A. Regional Food Bank page was located for those who wished to make cash donations online. All told, audience members, artists, staff and crew filled the four large bins provided by the Food Bank, contributing nearly 1,500 pounds of food.

Hosts: The theme of food was also incorporated programmatically into the Holiday Celebration. A different local celebrity chef hosted each hour of the show. Each demonstrated simple holiday recipes and food preparation tips which were featured on our website for the television viewing audience to consult as they prepared their own holiday meals. The host roster included: Border Grill's Susan Feniger; The Food Dudes of the Food Network; Akasha Richmond of Culver City's Akasha; Kajsa Alger, executive chef of the soon-to-open Street; Chef Jeff Henderson of the Food Network's Chef Jeff Project; and Chef Lala, author of the just published "Best Loved Mexican Cooking with Chef Lala."

Artist Features: Twelve mini-documentary packages about select artists were produced and included background footage and performer interviews in the field and in studio settings. Artists also incorporated the food theme by sharing their own favorite and traditional holiday foods during the interviews. In an effort to provide more information about groups and performances graphic "pop-ups" which appeared near the bottom of the screen during performances were introduced.

Dance Commissions: In order to increase the number of dance ensembles represented on the Holiday Celebration, the Arts Commission identified and commissioned three dance companies to create pieces specifically for the Holiday Celebration around the theme of "The Nutcracker." Commissioned pieces were to either incorporate music from "The Nutcracker" or interpret a segment of "The Nutcracker" through their own dance form or style. The companies selected were Antics Performance (hip-hop), Backhausdance (contemporary), and blue13 dance company (bollywood).

Overall, the number and diversity of dance programming this year was strong. Footage has been compiled for submission to the Dance Resource Center's Horton Awards, the regional award for achievements in the dance community.

50th Anniversary Preparation: David Zeiger, producer of the Holiday Celebration pre-recorded packages, filmed on location at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion during key points at load-in, rehearsal, and on show day to capture "behind-the-scenes" footage that will be compiled into a "making of" mini-documentary for next year's 50th Annual Los Angeles County Holiday Celebration.

Ratings

The Holiday Celebration was broadcast on the four regional PBS stations: KCET, KLCS, KOCE, and KVCR. Combined ratings over the four stations reflect approximately 6.8 million household impressions in the Southern California area over the six hours of the program.
